

Daily Self Evaluation

Take Control of Your Day

Build discipline. Reduce bad habits. See your real progress.

Daily Self Evaluation is a personal self-improvement app that helps you track what you want to do more of, what you want to stop, and how your choices shape your life over time.

If you want more structure, more honesty, and a clearer picture of your habits, this app gives you a simple system to measure your days and improve them step by step.

What Is This App?

This app helps you evaluate your day in a practical and motivating way.

You create categories for the important areas of your life, add positive tasks you want to complete, add forbidden actions you want to avoid, and record what really happened each day. The app then turns that into a daily score, a calendar view, and clear statistics.

It is designed for people who want to become more disciplined, more aware, and more consistent.

Why You Need This App

Many people know what they should do, but still struggle with:

- no structure in daily life
- repeating bad habits
- weak consistency
- unclear priorities
- no real way to measure personal progress

This app gives you a system.

- Your good actions are visible.
- Your harmful actions are visible.
- Your progress is measurable.
- Your weak points become clear.
- Your improvement becomes easier to maintain.

Instead of relying on mood or memory, you start relying on daily evidence.

How the System Works

The system is simple:

- Positive tasks increase your score.
- Forbidden actions decrease your score.

- Each item has an importance level, so not everything affects your score equally.
- Daily tasks are judged for that day.
- Weekly tasks build up across the week.
- Monthly tasks build up across the month.

If you complete more of an important positive task, your score improves more.

If you repeat an important forbidden action, your score drops more.

If you go beyond your target on a positive task, the app rewards that extra effort.

For weekly and monthly tasks, progress is tracked across the full period instead of only one day.

How To Use the App

1. Add or review your categories.
2. Create your positive tasks.
3. Create your forbidden actions.
4. Set the importance of each item.
5. Open a day and enter what you completed and what happened.
6. Save the evaluation.
7. Review your calendar results.
8. Open Statistics to study trends for tasks, habits, and categories.

Statistics and Insights

The app gives you more than a score. It helps you understand your behavior.

You can review:

- a daily score chart to see your overall direction
- task and forbidden-action charts to see which habits are improving or getting worse
- category analysis to understand which areas of life are helping or hurting your progress

This makes it easier to answer important questions:

- Are you becoming more consistent?
- Which habits are hurting you most?
- Which category of life needs the most work?
- Are your weekly and monthly goals actually improving?

Backup and Restore

You can save your data and move it when needed.

- Use Download Memory to export your data as a JSON file.
- Keep that file somewhere safe.
- Use Upload Memory to bring the data back again.

When you restore a backup, the current app data is replaced by the imported data.

Languages

- English is the default language.
- Arabic is fully supported.
- You can switch languages at any time from Settings.

Important Notes

- Future days cannot be evaluated.
- Today only counts after you save the evaluation.
- Past days can still affect your results even if you did not manually save them, because missed positive tasks are counted for past dates.
- Forbidden actions are not automatically added to past days unless you record them.
- Going beyond a positive target is rewarded.
- Weekly progress depends on language: Arabic weeks start on Saturday, English weeks start on Monday.
- Default categories are protected, while custom categories can be edited or removed.

Final Message

This app is not about perfection.

It is about honesty, consistency, and improvement.

Even small daily progress matters. A better life is built one evaluated day at a time.

Focus on progress, not perfection.

Consistency beats intensity.
